MONEY FOR STATE DEBTS

House Discussed Mr. Rawalt's Bill and Passed it on Second Reading.

HOMESTEAD EXEMPTION BILL

Passed by the Senate on Third Reading Number of New Bills Introduced in Each House.

Special to The Gazette.

Denver, Jan. 25.—In the legislature today the house occupied a good part of the afternoon discussing rules that shall govern its proceedings. Just before its adjournment it took up and passed on the Representative Rawalt's bill providing for the salaries of the city officials for the past quarter and also for the payment of the $95,000 debt incurred by Governor Thomas in order to run the state institutions during his administration.

The senate passed a good part of the morning in criticising newspaper articles which criticised the joint finance committee of the two houses. It then passed a number of bills on the third reading, one of them being Senator Whitford's $2,000 exemption homestead bill. Both houses adjourned until Monday morning.

THE HOUSE SESSION.

In his opening prayer this morning Rev. Mr. Kirkland prayed very touchingly for the family of Representative Chisholm "in this their hour of trouble in the loss of their child."

The reports of a number of committees were read and referred.

The penitentiary committee reported adversely upon H. B. 120, providing for public labor to be done by convicts. The reports will be considered tomorrow.

Among other reports was the report of the committee on Senator Seldomridge's bill regarding the cession of a tract of land in Colorado Springs to the United States government. The committee recommended that it be considered in the committee of the whole and do pass.

The communication of the gentleman from Kansas, who asked that the legislature pay him $8 dollars for a number of wolves' scalps which he obtained five years ago and who also asked the members to vote for Hon. T. M. Patterson for United States senator, was referred to Mr. Patterson for consideration.

New Bills.

The following new bills were introduced:

Barber—An act to prohibit the use of deception, misrepresentation, false advertising and false pretenses and unlawful acts in the procuring of employes or others to work in any department of labor in this state and fixing penalties criminal and civil for a violation thereof.

Schwlegert—Providing for the inspection of all kinds of petroleum oil that shall be used for illuminating purposes.

Bell—Regarding the publication of ordinances of cities and towns.

Lorbeer—Concerning convict labor and the products thereof.

Discussion of Rules.

At the afternoon session of the house the committee on rules reported a mode of procedure in the discussion of bills during their passage. The report provided for 20 minutes' discussion on the third reading. This caused a storm of opposition to the report. Mr. Rawalt led the opposition. He cited that such a rule would completely shut off all hope of enacting laws during the closing days of the session.

Mr. Montgomery argued that one good law passed with due deliberation was worth more than 100 poor laws passed hurriedly. At last the clause allowing 20 minutes' debate was stricken out and the report as amended was adopted. The house then went into committee of the whole for the consideration of bills on second reading. The adverse report on Mr. Pischke's bill in relation to gambling was adopted. By consent two bills of Mr. Rawalt's were brought forward on the calendar for second reading. The first provided for an appropriation of $4,000 for use by the state board of health in the prevention of the spreading of contagious diseases. The bill was adopted.

Payment of Back Bills.

The second bill by Mr. Rawalt was an act to provide for the payment of the state officers for the month of December, 1900, and January, February and March, 1901. The bill read as follows:

"Incidental and contingent expenses of the several executive and judicial departments and state bureaus, $95,000.

"This is the sum Governor Thomas promised for the maintenance of the state institutions during his administration and the bill is meant to appropriate money to reimburse those who loaned the money to the state. This part of the bill brought on a lengthy discussion. The Republicans contended that it should be itemized. Mr. Rawalt itemized it as follows:

Borrowed for state institutions	$70,000
Publication of constitutional amendments	6,000
Expenses of revenue commission	4,000
Regular contingent expenses	15,000
Total	$95,000

The Republicans still contended that the itemizing was not specific enough. They contended that it was not business to pay out $95,000 merely on guess work. They were in favor of paying every cent that had been borrowed, but they wanted that it should be done in a businesslike manner. The debate covered the entire history of the state, each side attempting to prove that the other party was responsible for the financial condition of the state. The bill finally passed by a strictly party vote.

SENATE PROCEEDINGS.

The senate started the morning session today with an indignation meeting. Their remarks were directed at the abuse of the state over certain articles that have appeared in regard to the actions of the joint finance committee and the payment of certificates of indebtedness issued by Governor Thomas. It was stated that the committee which has this matter in charge wishes it to be distinctly understood that its members had never thought for a moment of repudiating this debt, but were doing all they could to bring it before the assembly in a legal manner. Senator Whitford discussed the newspaper articles at great length and declared that past Republican administrations were largely responsible for the present condition of financial affairs.

Senator Farwell interrupted Senator Whitford to ask if Governor Thomas did not in his message charge that the present financial embarrassment of the state was due to the conduct of the Twelfth assembly. "The senator did not know, but said he was wrong if he did make such a statement."

Passed Third Reading.

While under the order of business a number of bills passed the third reading, the principal one of which was Senator Whitford's homestead bill limiting the exemption to $2,000 and providing methods of sales. The discussion occupied practically all the rest of the morning. After some slight amendments the bill passed by a vote of 26 to 4. During the afternoon session Senator Whitford's bill in relation to attorneys' fees was amended so that an attorney must file a specific composition with the clerk of the court and was then adopted. Joint memorial No. 2, by Senator Jefferson, concerning arid lands, was also adopted.

The following bills were introduced in the senate:

Duff—Providing for an amendment to city charters and establishing a civil service commission for the department of fire and police.

Barela—Providing for the calling of a constitutional convention to revise and amend the state charter.

Seldomridge—Providing for the issuing of $2,394,483.78 in bonds covering all existing debts of the state. The bonds are to draw 4 per cent interest.

A number of bills were introduced providing appropriations for state institutions.

CINCINNATI MAYOR HAS ISSUED A FIGHT PERMIT

Cincinnati, Jan. 25.—Mayor Julius Fleischmann today granted the Sangerfest Athletic association permit to have two sparring matches at the Sangerfest building on February 5, one of 10 rounds and one of 20.

The committee today called on the mayor and presented its plea that the permit be issued at once. They stated that in view of the fight being made against the proposed match between Jeffries and Ruhlin to aid in lifting the Sangerfest debt they did not think that it was just to them that the mayor should withhold his permit until two days before the fight was scheduled to come off. The committee informed the mayor that if a fight were to be made in the courts against the contest it should be done at once. They asserted that the contracts for remodeling the Sangerfest hall had been let and the work was ready to be pushed when the permit was granted. The mayor said he had not so far had these ideas presented to him. He admitted that he had and at once issued the permit.

The Sangerfest directors tonight put out the following statement:

"The sparring contest of the Sangerfest defiance will be held on the scheduled date, February 5, 1901. The directors of the Sangerfest Athletic association have held strictly to the plans originally outlined.

"We propose to do a strict business, within the law. We have assurance from every side that this contest would prove to be the largest gathering of business and professional men from outside of the city that has ever assembled here, that their coming would not only result in paying a goodly portion of our unfortunate debt, but would be a great boost for this business community. The many inquiries and orders for seats coming through Cincinnati business houses from customs abroad show that this is no idle expectation. The excursions already arranged for from dozens of the larger and many of the smaller cities is equally as convincing. Since his honor Mayor Fleischmann has issued the permit all doubts as to the contest are removed from the success of the undertaking.

"The fight promoters are jubilant and feel that the contest between Jeffries and Ruhlin will surely come off as scheduled. It is stated tonight that the ministry have given up the fight against the proposed contest and the leading opponents now, it seems, are several of the best known attorneys of this city. They may take the matter to the courts for injunction, but they have not as yet indicated in what manner they will endeavor to prevent the contest from being pulled off."

DEFENSE OF THE SUBSIDY

Characteristically Forceful and Eloquent Speech by Senator Depew.

SUMMARY OF THE ADDRESS

Foreign Conflict Would Act Upon the United States as an Embargo On the Coast.

Washington, Jan. 25.—Senator Depew of New York today delivered in the senate a characteristically forceful and eloquent address in support of the shipping bill. Little progress was made with the Indian appropriation bill. The [illegible] was continued in the passage of private pension bills.

Bills were passed as follows:

To establish a subport of entry at Douglas, Ariz.; granting to the employes of the naval stations, naval yards, arsenals and gun factories 15 days' leave of absence each year; amending the revised statutes concerning the distilling of brandy from fruits so as to include in the list of fruits, cherries and figs.

Consideration of the Indian appropriation bill was then resumed. An amendment of the committee providing for the payments to the heirs of General Albert Pike of $75,000 by the Choctaw nation for services rendered in the collection of about $1,000,000 from the United States was attacked by Mr. Gallinger who said that already the Choctaw nation had paid $900,000 as attorneys' fees in the collection of its claim of $3,000,000 against the government. He declared there ought to be a law against such [illegible] and denounced it as outrageous and villainous in the extreme.

Mr. Jones (Ark.) maintained that the claim of General Pike's heirs was perfectly just and reasonable.

The amendment was agreed to.

DEPEW'S SPEECH.

At 2 o'clock the shipping bill was [illegible] and Mr. Depew was recognized to deliver a speech in support of the measure.

Senator Depew began with a survey of the country's marvelous development, pointing out the immense material progress that had been made in agriculture and manufactures, how our exports had grown to $1,500,000,000 in excess of our imports and how the [illegible] had been developed into the most comprehensive in the world. But he insisted that the development of the country had been one-sided. While prepared to feed and clothe half of the world outside the United States, we had developed our transportation system only to our own coast line and had allowed our merchant marine to remain undeveloped so that there was actually a greater tonnage of American vessels built in this country for the foreign trade in 1897 than in 1900. Said Mr. Depew:

"The farm, the factory and the mine have filled the warehouses, and the docks of our Atlantic and Pacific coasts, with their contributions to national wealth, employment and the happiness of our people, and left their transportation to Europe, to Asia, to Africa, to South America and to Australia, to the greed of foreign ship owners, to the protection of foreign flags and to the hazards of foreign wars.

Danger of Embargo.

"A general collision, which is one of ten predicted in the European newspapers, among the great powers of Europe in the mad haste of their navies and armies to outstrip each other in the acquisition of spheres of influence in Asia and Africa, would act upon the United States as an embargo, leaving us simply a spectator of the conflict. We would be shut up within ourselves as absolutely as if the navies of the world were blockading our ports.

"Looking to the remedy for the present stagnation in the American merchant marine, Mr. Depew said the cry of 'free ships' had long ago been discounted. It was not to be considered as a remedy. For it left out of the question the development of an American shipbuilding industry. The plan of discriminating duties, he said, was also impracticable. France had tried it and had been forced to repeal her law within a year. No nation would submit to discriminating duties without retaliating against us, and no nation like ours, which is more of a seller than a buyer, can afford to provoke such retaliation and thus stimulate production in Russia, India, Egypt and Asia against our cotton and our corn.

The Only Solution.

"The speaker's conclusion was that there remained only the subsidy as a practical solution of the problem. Said he:

"All nations are agreed that their merchant marine can be built up only by bounties. The bounties paid last year by the different maritime nations were $26,000,000 in round numbers, against $1,000,000 in round numbers by the United States. German statesmen discovered that if the empire was to find a market for its growing surplus it must have its own ships. Within the past few years the German government has been increasing directly its subsidies, and has lent every possible government encouragement to the enlargement of German ship yards and the construction and operation of German steamships."

The result has been that Germany has come to the fore and taken second rank as a maritime power, although she has little coast and few ports. The building up of the American shipping industry, he said, would mean the current employment of 200,000 men in shipbuilding operations besides the direct aid that it would give to all lines of iron and steel production in this country.

The Present Measure.

As to the adequacy of the present measure to meet the requirements of the case, Mr. Depew said it was to his mind as fair a solution of the problem as could be devised at present.

"It is estimated," said Senator Depew, "that there is paid by American producers to foreign steamships in freight charges at least $[illegible] a year. Four per cent on this would give us an American merchant marine and the expenditure of much the larger part of this money in our own country."

"It is urged," said Senator Depew, "that American ships would have more expensive to build and maintain than those of foreign countries. Without subsidies they were operated at a loss. If, with the small subsidy proposed, they would yield enormous profits, as some opponents of the shipping bill declared, there would be an abundance of money flowing into the shipbuilding business to take advantage of this fresh opportunity for profitable investment.

Finally he said:

"With the construction of the Nicaragua canal which will be completed within the next few years, the necessity for an auxiliary fleet and a merchant marine becomes still greater. Whether we look at this question as a matter of national defense in time of war, or consider it as one of the factors in the solution of one indubitable problems as they arise from time to time, or sum up the possibilities for the American farm and factory and mine in the wants present and potential of the millions in the orient, the beneficent influence of this measure becomes more real."

THE INDIAN WAR.

The Indian appropriation bill was then taken up again and when the reading of the bill had been finished an amendment offered by Mr. Pettigrew for the committee on Indian affairs providing that lands allotted in severalty to Indians may be condemned under the law of the states or territories in which the land is located was adopted.

Discussing a committee amendment providing for the appointment of townsite commissioners Mr. Platt (Conn.) said that the present trouble in the Creek nation had nothing to do with the platting or disposal of townsites. Those who were creating the present disturbance, he said, were principally wild Indians who are opposed to the breaking up of tribal relations and the allotment of their lands in severalty.

Mr. Jones (Ark.) confirmed Mr. Platt's statement and expressed the opinion that the threatened uprising was not serious.

At 4:45 p. m. the Indian bill was laid aside pending the consideration of the townsite amendment, not having been concluded.

The senate then passed all unobjected pension bills on the calendar and at 5:05 p. m. adjourned.

HOUSE ADOPTED REPORT ON ARMY REORGANIZATION

Washington, Jan. 25.—The house today adopted the conference report upon the army reorganization bill. The contest over it was brief. Mr. Hull, chairman of the military affairs committee, presented the report. The debate was chiefly notable for a short exchange between Mr. Richardson, the minority leader, and Mr. Hay (Dem., Va.), a member of the committee who reproached the Democratic leader for not making a fight for a temporary army when the bill was originally before the house.

The naval appropriation bill was finally passed today and also 77 private pension bills.

Mr. Hull, chairman of the committee on military affairs, submitted the report of the army reorganization bill.

Mr. Richardson, (Tenn.) the minority leader requested that the report be allowed to lie over until tomorrow. The report had not been printed, he said, and members should have an opportunity to examine it.

Mr. Hull would not agree to this. He said the conference had been full and fair in presence of the minority representatives and while they did not agree to the principle of an increase in the regular army, the army bill, he said, should have been a law three weeks ago. It had been held up.

"It has not been held up here," observed Mr. Richardson.

Outrageously Delayed.

"Not here," replied Mr. Hull. "But it has been outrageously delayed in the congress of the United States. Thirty-five thousand volunteers are ready to be shipped home and they must be replaced by July 1 by soldiers of the regular establishment unless we are willing to do a great injustice to them by holding them there."

Proceeding Mr. Hull explained in detail the concessions of the two houses on the various items. In the course of his statement he had a sharp exchange with Mr. Richardson. He made a strong appeal to both sides of the house in favor of the provisions designed to retire General Shafter as a major general and Generals Lee and Wilson as brigadier generals, which the house had stricken out.

He paid a high tribute to Generals Lee and Wilson and passed a glowing eulogy upon General Shafter, whose Santiago campaign he declared, would pass into history as one of the greatest planned and fought in any age.

Objections to the Bill.

Mr. Hull was closely questioned about various features of the conference report. In reply to Mr. Adams (Pa.) he said the house conferees had made very little effort to retain the house provision for a veterinary corps. Mr. Adams insisted that the house conferees should have stood by the house provision.

Mr. Hull declined to yield the floor to Mr. Adams, but yielded six minutes to Mr. Richardson (Tenn.), who desired to obtain the floor if his own right. Mr. Richardson said that several questions upon which the house had solemnly declared itself had been yielded by the house conferees. To vote for the report would now mean to vote to increase the list of officers upon the retired list, to which he was unalterably opposed.

"If that provision were out of the bill," interrupted Mr. Cannon (Ill.), "would the gentleman vote for it?"

"The report empowers the president to increase the standing army from 55,000 to 100,000 men," replied Mr. Richardson. "If that provision were out also—"

"That is not a categorical response," observed Mr. Cannon.

"No," replied Mr. Richardson, "I would never vote for the bill." (Democratic applause.)

Mr. Hay (Va.) resented indignantly Mr. Richardson's statement the report would give the president the power to increase the army to 100,000 men and took the minority leader severely to task for refusing to join in a fight for a temporary army when the bill was originally before the house.

Vote on the Report.

The conference report was adopted 133 to 100. Two Democrats, Clayton (N. Y.) and Livingston (Ga.), voted for the report.

Consideration of the naval appropriation bill was resumed.

Mr. Bixey (Va.) moved to recommit the bill with instructions to strike out the provisions for the increase of the navy (two battleships and two cruisers). It was defeated, 42 to 132. The bill was then passed.

The house then took up private pension bills.

Matters ran along smoothly until a bill was reported to remove the charge of desertion against a soldier.

Mr. Talbert (S. C.) declared that it was an outrage that men who deserted their flag should have their records cleared. While all bills for the removal of the charge of desertion contained a provision that no pay or emolument should accrue on account of its passage, he said the provision was practically a dead letter. He served notice that if he could prevent it no other bill to remove the charge of desertion should pass so long as he was a member of the house. Seventy-seven pension bills were passed.

At 5.05 p. m. the house adjourned.

UPRISING IS EXAGGERATED

Army Officer Reports That There Has Been No Indian Violence.

MILITIA HELD IN READINESS

But the Governor Will Not Send Them to the Scene Unless Some Overt Act is Committed.

Omaha, Jan. 25. General Lee tonight received a telegraphic report from Lieut. Dixon, commanding the troop of cavalry sent to the scene of the Creek Indian troubles. He states that he has not yet made a full investigation, but has learned enough to warrant his saying that the reports of an uprising have been greatly exaggerated. Thus far he has encountered no Indians, and from civilians he learns there has been no violence on the part of the Indians and he anticipates none.

The report from Lieut. Dixon comes from Henrietta which place he reached during the forenoon.

MILITIA IN READINESS.

Guthrie, O. T., Jan. 25. Matters seemed to have quieted down yesterday morning in the Indian scare along the eastern border but at noon the following telegram was received by the governor:

"Situation along our border serious. I cannot be responsible for the safety of our people unless militia is ordered out at once. William Tilghman, Sheriff."

At 1:0 o'clock the governor held a consultation over the telephone with Colonel Hoffman and Sheriff Tilghman at Chandler, and they stated that many depredations were being committed over the line in the Creek reservation both by the Indians and by outlaws, but that up to that time nobody had crossed the line and there was no positive evidence of any intention to cross or to commit any overt acts on this side of the line.

The governor advised that a close watch be kept along the line and advice sent him of any overt act against citizens or property in Oklahoma but until there was some attempt to cross the line or commit some such act he did not feel that he would be justified in ordering the national guards to the scene.

At 1:30 Governor Barnes sent for President Bellamy of the territorial council and Speaker Stevens of the house, and held a consultation with them on the matter. Both expressed themselves as wholly satisfied with the stand he had taken and assured him the united support of both branches of the legislature in whatever action he should deem best or necessary for the best interests of the territory of the protection of the people along the border.

NO DANGER AT CHECOTAH.

Checotah, I. T., Jan. 25. H. G. Turner of Brush Hill, where the Snake band of Indians are supposed to be in camp, was in Checotah this morning and says there is no truth in the report from Eufaula of Indian uprisings. It is true, he says, that a few Indians are attempting to enforce some of their old laws wherein members of their own tribe are concerned. Checotah is in no danger of attack.

DANGER FROM OUTLAWS.

Guthrie, O. T., Jan. 25. Gov. Barnes today ordered a military company each at Chandler and Shawnee, O. T., to be in readiness to start at any moment for the Indian Territory line. Adjt. Gen. Orner got the necessary supplies for the troops ready for shipments this afternoon. Three thousand rounds of ammunition were provided for each company. Gov. Barnes received many messages today from citizens from Stroud and Chandler, which are situated near the Creek nation, asking that militia be sent at once to protect life and property by patrolling the line. There is apparently little fear of the Indians, but there is danger that outlaws that infest the country will raid banks and stores in Oklahoma under the guise of Indians. Gov. Barnes will not send the troops unless the situation becomes more threatening than at present.

ROYAL FAMILY'S LAST FAREWELL TO THE QUEEN

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 26.—12:45 a. m.—The royal family yesterday took their last loving look at the features of the dead queen. About 10 o'clock in the evening the coffin was brought into the bedroom where were waiting King Edward, Emperor William, the Duke of Connaught, Sir James Reid and the royal ladies. The latter having retired, Sir James Reid, with reverent hands, assisted by three trusted household servants, and in the presence of the king, the emperor and the duke, removed the body from the bed to the coffin.

In death it was lovelier than in the closing days of life. Not a trace of the ravages of disease was visible. The servants having retired, Queen Alexandra, the princess and the children were recalled and with lingering steps and stifled sobs they passed slowly before the white robed and peaceful figure. At the foot, never moving, stood the king, and when the mourning crowd had passed there remained only the son and grandson of the dead.

Emperor William wept even more bitterly than the royal ladies. Finally he also retired and the king was left alone. Sir James Reid, beckoning to the servants who were holding the coffin lid, asked the king's instructions.

For a few seconds the king stood speechless, stricken with emotion at the last farewell. Then he said quickly, "Close it details. It must not be opened again."

Thus the remains of England's greatest ruler were forever closed from human view. Reverently the coffin was borne into the dining room. Officers and men from the royal yachts took their stand around the coffin, over which the king, queen and kaiser gently laid the robes of a knight of the garter, placing at the head a diamond crown. Beneath lay the royal ensign, while hanging above was the union jack.

At the altar was the rector of Whippingham, who read a portion of the funeral service in the presence of the royal family. Emperor William covered his face and his grief and that of Princess Beatrice was pitiful. After the benediction each placed a wreath upon the coffin and then all retired.

The correspondent of the Associated Press is informed that the will has not been opened and that according to present arrangements it will not be opened until after the funeral, its details being unknown to the royal family. There is no truth in the statement that King Edward and Emperor William knelt by the bedside of the queen and swore to preserve peace.

A significant feature of all the death bed scenes has been their absolute naturalness and the absence of false or dramatic elements.

According to a rumor circulating at Osborne King Edward desires himself to be styled "His Imperial Majesty" in order to emphasize the fact that he is emperor as well as king. Today (Saturday) the local volunteers and the forces in the vicinity will pass through the chapelle ardente. After these will pass the corps of the leading papers of the world.

A very remarkable feature of all the proceedings is the intense martial air which pervades them. The naval parade off Spithead is to be the greatest, if possible, the world ever saw, and the military arrangements at Windsor will eclipse anything of the kind ever attempted.

Tonight Grenadiers are mounting their silent guard over the coffin with arms crossed and heads bent. The silence is unbroken save by an occasional shuffle by the soldiers in changing their uneasy position.

DEATH OF VERDI

Rome, Jan. 26.—A special dispatch to the Patria announces that Verdi, the composer, is dead.

MONTANA SHERIFF SHOT.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 25.—A special to the Miner from Virginia City says:

James Summers, sheriff of Madison county, was shot from ambush and instantly killed this afternoon at a cabin in Morgan gulch, about twelve miles south of Ennis, by John Woolf.

Sheriff Summers left this city this morning to serve a search warrant on Woolf who was accused of breaking into some cabins in that neighborhood. It seems that Woolf saw the sheriff coming and shot him without warning. Woolf is 40 years old. He escaped after the killing.

BRITISH TRAIN ATTACKED.

A dispatch received at the British war office from General Kitchener, dated Pretoria, January 24, says the invaders have done little harm in Cape Colony. They have not been joined by the inhabitants, with whom they are daily becoming more unpopular.

There is a certain lawyer, or at least the public accepts him as a member of the legal profession who has a very lucrative practice in east side police courts, who can neither read nor write, says the New York Evening Sun. How he ever was admitted to the bar is a mystery which neither private citizens nor public officers has ever taken the trouble to look into. He is a prominent character in the Ghetto and often in a picturesque way in a small way. His lack of education is offset by remarkable shrewdness and ingenuity. His office is fitted up with elaborate telephone apparatus by means of which he makes a deep impression upon his clients and at the same time extorts an unusual fee. The clients enters the office and states the case, some friend or relative in trouble, a police court case that a magistrate could dispose of in a few minutes. The lawyer shakes his head and wrinkles his brows and carries on such an ominous pantomime that the client trembles in his shoes for the safety of his friend or relative. Then the unlettered lawyer gets up and goes over to the telephone, rings the Bell with great ostentation and calls out a number—his office boy is at the other end of the wire. The following conversation ensues:

"Hello! Is dis chudge in?" (Pause). "Tell him dot Mr. — would vish to speak wid him."

"Ess dot you, chudge?" A whispered conversation in monologue follows. "Vill you come ouid and hinch wit me, chudge? Yes? All ridt. Meet me ad — s. Gootby."

Then he turns to his client and says: "Vell, dis ouidlook is patter? I will tag dis chudge ouid to lunch and seddle dis matter. Dis chudge's lunch will cost you $25," and the client disgorges with the greatest alacrity and goes away murmuring "Vot a pull dot man has."

CITY'S BIT OF A BLIZZARD.

Lively Ten-Minute Snow Squall Much Colder Tomorrow.

(New York Post.)

New Yorkers unfortunate enough to be in the streets just after ten o'clock this morning must have thought that their sea coast city had been suddenly lifted, as in a magic carpet and dropped in the midst of the North Dakota plains; for at 10:15 a black squall which the weather-wise had noted over the Jersey City Heights came whirling across the Hudson and burst upon Manhattan with all the fury of the true blizzard of the west. For ten minutes the air was filled with a mass of snowflakes driven before a gale of hurricane force; almost before people had had time to reach shelter, the snow had passed, and, though the high winds persisted, skies turned crystal clear.

While the squall was at its height, hats of pedestrians were jerked off their owners' heads and whirled away in the great white cloud that roared through the streets before one had time to see it coming. Half of the stock of the newsman on the corner of Fulton street and Broadway flew up in the air and disappeared towards East river. There was sleet in the air that stung the face, and then fell upon the pavement, making it slippery as ice. Men grabbed at the nearest stationary thing for support; they clutched at each other or waved their arms wildly in the air for the missing headgear; women, helpless, with their skirts wound tightly about their limbs, dropped on their knees and held fast to the sidewalks. The blast was so strong that it took horses off their feet. Two of the mounted policemen of the Broadway squad admitted that they were content to keep "perfectly still" for the space of three "fierce minutes." When it was over, men and women looked at each other and laughed. They were plastered with hard, dry snow that stuck in their hair, covered their faces, and fastened itself in matted cakes upon their clothing.

The forecaster said that the snow storm was merely incidental and local. It was caused he said, by a sudden change of wind from the southwest to northwest. The high winds, Mr. Emery added, would continue all night, and would bring much colder weather, so that Sunday, though fine, would probably be the coldest day of the winter. As an indication of what was coming the thermometer dropped from 26 to 20 degrees in ten minutes, during the squall.

HOUSE WARMING. Mr. Warren W. Woods, the president of the Woods Investment company, threw open the parlors of his beautiful residence on Wood avenue to the members of Mr. T. P. Day's Young Men's cabinet last night. The beautiful house has just been completed and Mr. Woods asked the young men to be the guests at the house warming. About 120 members of the cabinet were present and enjoyed a delightful evening. The cabinet mandolin orchestra rendered several selections during the evening, and Messrs. Bale and Colburn gave one or two duets. Miss Brooks contributed to the pleasure of all with several readings. Refreshments were served and the major part of the evening was spent in an informal social manner.

No External Symptoms.

The blood may be in bad condition yet with no external signs, no skin eruption or sores to indicate it. The symptoms in such cases being a variable appetite, poor digestion an indescribable weakness and nervousness, loss of flesh and a general run-down condition of the system clearly showing the blood has lost its nutritive qualities, has become thin and watery. It is in just such cases that S S S has done some of its quickest and most effective work by building up the blood and supplying the elements lacking to make it strong and vigorous

"My wife used several bottles of S S S as a blood purifier and tonic up a weak and emaciated system with very marked effect by way of improvement. We regard it a great tonic and blood purifier.—J L Dotts, Princeton Mo

SSS is the greatest of all tonics and you will find the appetite improves at once strength returns and nervousness vanishes as new rich pure blood once more circulates through all parts of the system

S S S is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known. It contains no minerals whatever. Send for our free book on blood and skin diseases and write our physicians for any information or advice wanted. No charge for medical advice.

A PALE-FACE GIRL

may be almost safely set down as wanting red in her blood. If subject to dizziness, fainting, shortness of breath on slight exertion, no doubt remains.

To want red in the blood is to fail of the good of one's food. Her food is not nourishing her. She needs a change.

The easiest change she can get, and one of the best, is Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

It gives her the upper hand in the contest her food has the upper hand now she is pale no more.

We'll send you a little to try if you like. SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl street, New York.

The Life Line

Dr. Greene's NERVURA

COMES TO THE RESCUE OF SUFFERING MEN AND WOMEN.

THE gratitude of the man saved from death in the surf is not more sincere than that of thousands brought from deep misery by Dr Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. In almost countless cases all other means to save life and health had failed and despair had taken hold of the sufferer and all expectation of recovery is gone. Faith is not necessary to make the Nervura's work effective although it does assist. But faith comes quickly to the most skeptical when this great medicine is brought to his aid, for the work of rescue is underway at once.

The restoration of healthy action to the nerves and the increase of the red corpuscles in the blood to normal standard bring about a perfect circulation to every portion of the body and relieves the tension which destroys hope in the sufferer. Our bodies are such wonderful things the body and mind are so closely allied that the health of one has immediate effect upon the other. When the veins are filled with rich pure blood the springs of health are opened wide and the whole system responds to the impetus.

Dr. Greene's Nervura for the Blood and Nerves

All the world knows of the wonderful cures wrought by this great remedy but all the world does not know how scientifically exact it is. So promptly does it come to the assistance of the sufferer that a reaction is looked for in the belief that nothing that works so quickly can be of sustained and permanent effect. This reaction never comes. Nervura's work is perfect. It builds up and does not break down, and all chronic sufferers may rely upon it as certain help.

Hon JOHN R. PRESCOTT, Mt. Vernon, Maine, Member of Maine State Legislature, says:

"My nerves were terribly affected and I grew weak and feeble. I was constipated, had liver and kidney complaint and grew so tired [illegible] and I had good [illegible] eminent physicians said I could not be cured and I had given up hope. [illegible] my wife [illegible] on my using Dr Greene's Nervura. No doctors or medicine did me any good until I used Dr Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I began to gain right away in health and strength, and I can now work every day. I thank God that such a wonderful medicine as Dr Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy was created, and I hope all who are suffering from any trouble will use it, for I know they will be cured."

Free Advice for the Sick.

Dr Greene, Nervura's discoverer, will give his counsel free to all who write or call upon him at his office, 35 West 14th St., New York City. His advice is from his great skill and experience and will shorten the road to health. Thousands come to him and write to him constantly. Do not put off getting the right advice if you are ill.

THE OBJECTS OF THE REPUBLICAN CLUB.

THE Republican club of Colorado, as we understand it has two main objects.

One is to accomplish Republican success by rallying to the support of the party in this state enough votes to give it a majority in coming elections.

The second object is to place the control of the party in the hands of the voters so that the organization may be subservient to the popular will and follow the popular desire and in so doing preserve its hold upon the confidence and the support of the people.

It is difficult to see how such objects could be opposed by anyone. It is not for anyone, and it is not against anyone. It desires to restore Republican supremacy in Colorado for the sake of the business interests and the credit and reputation of the state, and it hopes to accomplish this end. It claims no exclusive right to direct the destinies of the party, but it does claim the right that belongs to every Republican and to every group of Republicans, to do what it can for Republican success and for the welfare of the state.

It is already apparent that the view taken by the organizers of the Republican club is that which is held by the great majority of Republicans throughout the state. Republican success is essential to Colorado's welfare, and Republican success can only be achieved by rallying to its support the people in a way that has not been achieved in recent years. The success of this organization will mean the strengthening of the party throughout the state, and the addition to its ranks of thousands of voters, whose adherence is an essential to party success.

The Republican club of Colorado deserves the support of every sincere Republican because it will do these things, and will do them without antagonizing or opposing any element or individual that is sincerely desirous of the success of the party and the welfare of the state.

There is some silly talk emanating from a few petty politicians that any organization which they do not control is "a faction." The surest possible way of creating factional strife is by such idle talk. When such men as Simon Guggenheim, James F. Burns and A. B. Seaman, all men of large interests in the state and all loyal Republicans, take the time and trouble to organize a Republican club to promote Republican chances of success the least any LOYAL REPUBLICAN can do is to applaud their efforts and to assist them in every possible way. The one certain way to avoid the creation of a faction in the Republican party is for every Republican to boldly proclaim himself a champion of every reputable Republican organization and to rebuke by precept and example every attempt to antagonize this or any other Republican club. Such conduct will soon put a stop to all petty carping and there will be no chance for any person to yell "faction" to serve some selfish purpose. The surest way of creating a faction, and a bitter and troublesome faction at that, is to permit any person or coterie to cry down the efforts of such men as those at the head of this movement.

The duty of all Republicans who put party above selfishness is to advocate openly and boldly every movement and every organization which makes for clean party methods and which tends to make party victory more certain.

The banquet of the Republican club on February second, should be a monster affair. We should demonstrate to the world that Republican principles are very much alive in Colorado and that there will be no doubt about the result in this state two years hence. We should demonstrate to the voters of the state that the party is in full control of its own affairs and that Republican candidates and Republican management will be entirely worthy of their heartiest support. There are no factions in the Republican party and none should be created by either inconsiderate talk or foolish acts.

The Colorado club is the only Republican state club in existence in the state and every Republican should join it. No initiation fees and no dues are required and it stands for the elevation of party policies and for clean methods. Every other organization in the state is part and parcel of the regular committee.

Republicans should encourage every attempt at honorable Republican organization.

CRAZY SNAKE AND GEORGE WASHINGTON.

THE outbreak of the Creek Indians does not appear to be anything more than a reversion to the savagery which these half civilized people have scarcely outgrown. But if Crazy Snake and the broncho Creeks and Choctaws had the intelligence to keep posted on current political discussion they would be able to set forth many good reasons why they should defy the authority of law, proclaim their independence of the United States government, and start on the war path against those who venture to differ with their views.

For have we not been told on the authority of a great national party in its formal platform that any government not based on the consent of the governed is a tyranny and that to impose upon any people a government officer is to substitute the methods of imperialism for those of the republic? Have we not been assured on the same authority that our national influence should make itself felt not by force and violence but through the persuasive force of a high and honorable example? Have we not been informed that the effort to sustain our authority in the Philippines is a war of "criminal aggression?"

Crazy Snake has just as good reason to proclaim himself the George Washington of the Creeks, as Aguinaldo has to be considered a patriot, and if sincerity and consistency are to prevail in anti-Republican politics an unheard of condition, all the anti-imperialists of the country must join in advocating the cause of the "Snake" Indians against the United States.

A REAL NEWSPAPER.

CONGRATULATIONS are in order to the Denver Post on its having secured an afternoon Associated Press franchise in the city of Denver. For a long time past the Post has been getting out what is probably the best imitation of a newspaper ever published in the United States, and its success under unfavorable conditions is sufficient to warrant a large measure of confidence in what it will be from now on.

The history of the Post only goes to prove again the necessity of the Associated Press franchise to every good newspaper. If any paper could have permanently succeeded without it, it would have been the Post, and the effort and expense of its proprietors to secure the franchise show that they appreciate its value as much as any one.

In this connection the Gazette desires to remind its readers that it is the only paper in Colorado Springs that secures the full and unabbreviated daily Associated Press report in this city, and the only one that publishes the Associated Press report on Sundays. The Gazette's state news, political and otherwise, is furnished by our own correspondents who are under instructions that insure its reliability and impartiality, and is the best state news service in Colorado.

MR. BRYAN AS A BUSINESS MAN.

WHATEVER may be thought of Mr. Bryan as a politician, there is no doubt as to his ability and success as a business man. The free silver propaganda did nothing for silver, though that was not the result of any lack of energy on the part of its chief prophet, but it accomplished a great deal for Mr. Bryan. It made him one of the best known men in the country, and it gave him personally a value as an assot to himself which he has been and is converting into cash at a rapid rate.

It is with no purpose of discrediting Mr. Bryan that the Gazette mentions these things. On the contrary, his success in advancing his own fortune entitles him to credit. It is what every American who is able to do, should do, and we trust that his efforts to promote his interests as an author, a lecturer and as an editor may continue to receive the reward they merit.

Mr. Bryan is a conspicuous instance of the opportunities that are open to the young men of the United States, opportunities that depend entirely upon personal character, upon energy and ability. He has leaped into prominence with great rapidity; he has gained fame and is fast gaining fortune at a rate that is encouraging to the ambition of every poor and friendless young man in the United States. If he has failed to reach the topmost height to which his ambition has aspired, it is because his countrymen have judged him to be unworthy of that position, and not because the doors of opportunity have been closed, or because the avenues of success are reserved only to a class.

The fault with Mr. Bryan is not that he has been a phenomenal success as a politician and not that he is attaining wealth rapidly. It is that his own career is a contradiction of the doctrines he assumes to teach. It does not become a Bryan to rail against the exclusive privileges of the rich or to stir up the bitternesses of the poor and unfortunate. The man who by the exercise of his talents is able to travel throughout the country in a Pullman car, to win the votes of millions for the presidency and to take in subscriptions to the Commoner at the rate of 1500 a day, is not the one who should speak to the toiling masses of the injustice of their being deprived of vacations at the seashore.

We trust that the Bryan example of what may be accomplished in the United States by hard work and ability and the superiority of these elements in life over wealth and "pull," may be complete. Mr. Bryan ought to leave a good fortune to his children and it is safe to say that they will not make a specialty of inveighing against the rich and decrying that the avenues of opportunity in this country are no longer open to honest merit.

SUPERSTITION AND THE WISCONSIN.

THE secretary of the navy has postponed the placing of the battleship Wisconsin in commission. The original date was set for Friday, February 1, but was changed in compliance with a petition from the officers and crew of the new ship, who represented that the day was an unlucky one.

The decision of the secretary is a wise and practical one. Not that Friday is any more unlucky than any other day of the week, but because a prejudice undoubtedly exists against the day and the superstition which connects it with ill luck is one of the things to be taken into consideration as affecting the future career and value of the ship.

The Thirteen club of New York protested against the change of date, but while the members of that club showed their superiority in reason, they likewise showed their deficiency in good sense.

When the Wisconsin goes into battle with every item of humanity, machinery and flame throbbing with intensest energy, the belief of her crew in her luck in the ship will not be less an element of her success than the power of her engines and guns or the strength of her armor.

The wise man is never ruled by superstition, but he recognizes its existence and is considerate of its effects upon other people.

There was a dress rehearsal at the opera house Thursday night to which regular prices of admission were charged. It was a magnificent drama and the company was good. The audience, some of them, were interested in the opportunity, such as is rarely given to the public of observing the crude processes of dramatic art. After the players learn their pieces they will give a good show.

A temperance fanatic in Kansas, of whose sanity doubts are seriously entertained is adopting illegal methods to suppress lawbreakers whom the officers of the law neglect to punish. There is the same excuse for Mrs Nation that there is for lynching in states where murderers go unpunished.

A recent French duel had a remarkable ending. One of the participants was injured. If any more accidents of this kind happen, the practice should be prohibited by law.

The Thirteenth General has tackled the proposition of home rule for Denver. From which it may be inferred that the Thirteenth General is ready to tackle anything.

The operation by President Kruger's doctor was successful. But that was not the first time the old man had his eyes opened since he reached Europe.

...Public Band Concerts...

Able Address by Mayor Robinson.

At the meeting of the League of American Municipalities recently held in Charleston Mayor Robinson of this city delivered the following able address on Public Band Concerts:

"The tendency of the day is to take a broader view of the functions of government than in the past. The extremist on one hand, urges for extreme socialism and on the other for less government and more individualism. The golden mean lying between these extremes is being sought by the most practical reformers, and students of municipal and national affairs. It is needless, if indeed, it might not be vain to shut our eyes to the fact that much discontent exists among a large number of the people. Many of us may, I have not the time to argue, rightly or wrongly, but the fact is there. It is the duty of legislators to deal with the facts as they exist and to seek a rational remedy, rather than allow the germs of discontent to develop serious disease. Recognize that we [illegible] of our present civilization. Evolution not revolution, is the right method of progress.

"Government of the people, by the people and for the people, should aim to enlist as far as may be the sympathy and support of all who believe in orderly and just government. There are in [illegible] many who hold erroneous ideas of government. They look only at the repressive side and forget that the greater degree of liberty is consistent only with a certain degree of restriction. They forget that restraint and force are essential to the highest development of the individual. Might that government should be so conducted as to induce a broader and more rational view of its purposes. I believe it is possible to enlarge the functions of municipal government in such a way as to confer the benefits of conservative socialism while at the same time giving added emphasis to individualism.

"There are many things that divide the poor and the rich, those who have the bare necessities of life and those who enjoy its luxuries. Can this chasm in any measure be bridged? Can the former class be brought to feel that the government is in sympathy with them and seeks to elevate and minister to, not simply govern and control? Can anything be done to make more common the good things which wealth has gained for the few. I believe much may be done, and within the legitimate province of government. We are all familiar with the process of brick-firing. The same principle may be applied in government. The way to arrest ultra socialistic tendencies is to gradually adopt what may be practicable and wise in socialism, (for all government is now more or less socialistic) and thus by evolution, advance to the highest state of government, instead of resisting all advance or refusing all concessions, thus encouraging a radical or revolutionary spirit, already too prevalent in some of our large cities.

"In the evolution of man and society we have passed the stage when the gratification of the mere physical necessities or comforts satisfies. Luxuries are demanded, and the higher the cultivation, the greater the evolution, the greater this demand. Not only the physical, but also the intellectual, the moral, spiritual and esthetical demands of our natures must be met and satisfied. City government has dealt almost solely with the material side of life. Good streets to facilitate rapid, comfortable and [illegible] transportation. Police and fire protection. A step further has been taken in sanitation which touches every department of life, but this, in the main, is a great movement. The time has come for an advance.

"These needs of the higher life have long been recognized. I have, in a measure, been met by private munificence. Public libraries, art galleries, museums, public [illegible] have to a limited extent, been provided for the education and recreation of the people. The time has come, it seems to me, when these higher necessities, these luxuries, if you please, should be made as common, as universal, as sewerage, general sanitation and other of the recognized functions of municipal government. And in doing this we adopt no revolutionary methods and violate no principles of government. It is simply a practical expansion of [illegible]. Provision for public parks has long been recognized as a legitimate function of municipal government and to make these parks in the highest degree minister to the intellectual and moral [illegible] as well as the physical welfare and comfort is simply their purpose. I hold of my own knowledge that the [illegible] educative and elevating force of such an [illegible] is [illegible]. It appeals alike to the intelligent, to the cultured and the poor and depressed. In the music and the [illegible] forgetfulness of care, the weary feet lightened and the sorrowful their sadness. Was Dryden happy that drove the shades of Stygian night per [illegible] music breathes [illegible]

"If music be the food of love, play on
Give me excess of it, that surfeiting,
The appetite may sicken and so die.
That strain again! It had a dying fall:
O it came o'er my ear like the sweet sound
That breathes upon a bank of violets
Stealing and giving odour!"

"This great force may be made of almost universal application in our cities driving out the devil of discontent and jealousy and bringing the people into sympathy with and giving them a glimpse of the [illegible] purposes of government. Lessing speaks of the art in the late, that by and by will make the music nuts, and, ever widening slowly, silence all.

"Deny who may there are rifts in our social fabric which should be closed before the widening shall silence the music of our republican government and replace it with the discord that has met the ear of every advanced civilization in the past. The rifts may be closed, partially at least, by ministering to the higher life through music in our parks and public halls. We made a beginning in this city [illegible] summer. It was experimental, but proved to be very popular. The city supplemented private subscriptions so that five concerts were had on alternate evenings in different parks for about six weeks. There is no reason why the city should not bear all the expenses of these concerts, as it may share equally in their benefits. We may appropriate, and do, for the prevention and elimination of physical disease; why is it not equally rational to appropriate to eliminate and prevent moral disease? Boston, probably the most advanced city in the country in respect of providing [illegible] luxuries, expends each year an increasing amount for music, baths and gymnasiums. And it pays. The time, I believe, is not far distant when municipalities will come to recognize the truth that it will pay, even from a financial standpoint to do many things through the government that is now left to individuals and societies, and that education and prevention pays better from every point of view, financial, moral and humanitarian, than to expend all its energies in repression and reformation.

"To recapitulate: The cause of discontent among any class in our cities should be carefully studied and allayed by all legitimate means within the province of government. The most effectual means by which this can be done is to bring the government into intimate touch and sympathy with the people. This may be done by municipalizing luxuries as far as practicable, not through granting the demands of Anarchists or radical socialists, but through a conservative extension of municipal functions. Public band concerts, because of the adaptability of music to all classes, and because of its educational and refining influence, should be provided by the municipality. The assertion that this is a proper function of municipal government is based upon the contention that the education and elevation of the masses, is preferable to reformation and equally legitimate."

FROM THE PRESS OF THE NATION.

Kansas and the Death Penalty.

(Kansas City Journal.)

It seems altogether likely that the Leavenworth lynching may result in the restoration of the death penalty in the state of Kansas. Perhaps the strongest argument against capital punishment is the fact that in spite of seemingly conclusive evidence innocent persons are sometimes executed. It is bad enough to make a human being serve a life sentence in prison for a crime that he has not committed, but it is worse to put him to death if he is innocent. There is always a hope that his innocence may be established and that he may secure his release.

But stock of this argument is the fact that one never raises the question as to right of the law to take life. Assuming that the law is sure in its operations and that only the guilty are condemned to death, the opponents of capital punishment taking life is still strong in the hearts and consciences of many people. But it is always argued in such cases as Leavenworth has, that a state that does not impose the death penalty, if the absence of a criminal punishment statute really constrains to mob violence, then it would be much better for the law to put a criminal to death than that he should be killed without trial and perhaps tortured by a frenzied mob. Under the circumstances it would be strange if the Kansas legislature, impressed by the awful tragedy at Leavenworth, should restore the death penalty in the state that there may be less danger of the [illegible] of such a tragedy to be [illegible].

The real question that invariably arises after such occurrences as these is one that has never yet been answered and that is how to protect infuriated people from themselves. The offense of illegal execution and torture is deplorable, not alone for the unnecessary suffering it inflicts upon a helpless victim, but also because of the injury it causes to the moral sense and self-respect of the perpetrators. This is the greater injury. The life of a worthless wretch who has committed a despicable crime is not worth such a sacrifice on the part of a respectable community.

The French Manner.

(Hartford Times.)

All the world has sympathized with the passengers of the ill-fated French steamer Russie and honor the persistence and bravery of the French fishermen and sailors in their efforts to rescue at last with success to save the passengers. The rescue was attended with danger and was effected in the face of great difficulties. No people could show greater heroism in trying to save imperiled fellow creatures than did those Frenchmen of the Mediterranean coast.

The difference in the emotional natures of Latin races and Northern or Germanic people is strikingly manifest in the language of the lieutenant who describes the scenes on board the doomed steamer. What German Norwegian, English, or American mate would have said in similar circumstances. "We passed the night in a state of the deepest anguish." "The utmost consternation now prevailed among the passengers." "The passengers seemed heart-broken; the women weeping convulsively." "The lamentations of the passengers changed to rejoicing, but when the cutter made for the open sea the passengers were again plunged into the deepest despair." Allowing for the difficulties of translating and the chance that the translator may have exaggerated the language of Lieutenant Guetherod, is it possible to imagine one of our seafaring men talking in that manner. There are brave men in all races, but the sons of the Latin race cannot avoid being brave in a sort of operatic style and mingling picturesque phrases in perfect a theatrical manner. It is their way, and after all why is it not as good a way as the reticence and shamefacedness with which a genuinely brave man of Teutonic blood acts and talks when he has risked his life to save another's? The deed is the thing after all. All honor to the brave Frenchmen. Let them talk in as excited and ornamental phrases as they like.

A story comes from Ohio of a woman whose husband got drunk and threatened to shoot her. In defending herself she seized a leather watch guard which he wore about his neck and pulled upon it so hard that she strangled him.

The husband was or had been a soldier in the Philippines and the law accord widow promptly applied for a pension which has just been granted her. She will receive eight dollars a month from a grateful government for having done one of its cavalrymen to death.

Almost anything is possible under our liberal pension system but it really would be interesting to know the classification under which this very queer pension is allowed. Probably the man died from disease contracted in the service. That is he got drunk while in the service and his drunkenness was the reason that his wife strangled him. Besides, he was an Ohio man and she is an Ohio woman. (Philadelphia Times.)

Everybody has heard of the twins that were named Kate and Duplicate. Representative Brosius of Pennsylvania adds to the collection of singular names by telling the story of the twins who were named Peter and Repeater. But even these do not exhaust the stock. The Washington Post also seriously asks the world to believe that there were a pair of boys who were called Max and Climax.

LEGISLATIVE INVESTIGATION

Joint Committee From the House and Senate Visited Colorado Springs Took Testimony From the Striking Miners.

A joint committee of the senate and house of the state legislature was in session yesterday afternoon in Colorado Springs from 2 o'clock until about 5. The committee was here to obtain information relative to the cause of the coal strike that is in effect at the coal mines north of the city.

The session of the committee was held at Union Labor hall above the dry goods store of the Johnson & Wilbur Mercantile Co., and was attended by about 150 miners from the various mines of the local coal district. Mr. L. L. Aitken and Mr. J. L. Lathurst of the Pike's Peak Consolidated company were present at the meeting, but did not give any testimony, stating that they would be present at the meeting of the committee to be held in Denver today, which meeting will be devoted to receiving the testimony and arguments of the operators and owners of the mines in the various coal districts of the state.

The committee consists of the following persons: Senators J. A. Tanquary, Pueblo, chairman; C. F. Eard, Boulder; F. A. Moore, Fremont; Representatives J. L. Bradley, Arapahoe; John Kennedy, Ouray; J. A. Martin, Pueblo; T. M. [illegible]

The committee was appointed by the legislature to make an investigation of the condition of the miners in the various coal districts and report to the legislature. It was given power to summon witnesses and all evidence which it has received has been given under oath. It has visited the coal districts about Louisville and Lafayette in the northern part of the state, the rockvale district in the Arkansas valley and also Coal Creek, and came to Colorado Springs from the various mining camps in and about Walsenburg. Yesterday afternoon was put in receiving testimony from the miners in the camps in this vicinity and today, or as long as is needed, will be taken to receive the side of the coal operators.

The legislators started out upon their tour last Saturday, a week ago today, and had instructions to report to the legislature not later than 10 days from the beginning of its work which would be on the 29th; but the committee will not be ready to report by that time. It will probably require most of next week to get the result of its investigations into shape. The power of the committee is limited to the making of the report. It is probable, however, that the report will have considerable influence with many of the members of the legislature in their attitude toward the eight-hour amendment to the constitution of the state, which is being sought by the laboring people and upon the bill now pending for the establishment of a board of arbitration under the state government, which would have power to enforce its findings in investigations of labor difficulties.

The members of the committee stated that the average of intelligence on the part of the miners of the Colorado Springs district was far and away higher than that which was found in any other camp that had been visited. There were about 150 miners in the room while the investigation proceeded, and they were as a rule men of unusual education and intelligence to be engaged in such hard manual labor as is performed by the coal miners. The questions put were answered promptly and directly and there was no inclination on the part of anyone to hold anything back or to make out conditions worse than actually exist.

The first witness called was Luke Brennan, the president of the local branch of the United Mine Workers of America. He testified that in the month of December he received a gross income of $61.40, out of which came his expenses, including rent for a house which was $6.00; the house was a structure 12x14 in size. He said that he was satisfied with the system of weighing coal at the mine and that he was willing that the company should take what he took out. He said that the cost of living had increased 35 per cent. in the last two years. He had known but twice of the state mining inspector being in the local camp.

William Tudor, check weigher, and William Wagner, a miner, testified to conditions at the mines in a general way.

Henry Jones, a miner, questioned by Senator Moore, said that he had been employed at the Dahlville mine since February, a year ago, and stated the demand that had been made upon the company by the miners. He said that in December he made $65 gross, out of which came all his stoppages or regular expenses, including rent, oil, coal, company doctor, etc., which amounted to about $32. He said that the demand for increased wages was made because he believed that the men were entitled to a higher wages being compared with the wages of other miners of the state. He said the mine was a good practical mine and that it was well kept. He was satisfied that he received credit for all the coal that he mined. He said the cost of living in the [illegible] had increased materially, probably 25 per cent, on everything. He was a member of the grievance committee of the union, but not an officer of it.

A. B. Jardine, Dominek C. Hill, Joe Marino, Frank P. Mott, Walter Robertson, Henry Stewart, and one or two others were examined by the committee and evidence along many lines was taken. The men were examined as to where they had formerly worked and as to the relative conditions existing in those camps and in the camps of the district about Colorado Springs.

Perhaps the best witness of the day was Frank Mott, whose testimony was that of a man who evidently runs his affairs regardless of their extent, upon a thoroughly business basis. He was able to tell exactly how much he had [illegible] and he had kept any information that the committee desired that a man who was employed as a miner might be in a position to give as he took notice of things with which he was concerned.

Mr. Mott stated that he was employed at the Curtis mine and that he had been employed there since September, 1899, and that he was so employed during all of the year 1900. He said that he was an able bodied man and was able to work all the time and that in a comparison of wages his wages would show up better than the wages of the average man employed by the company, because his wages included "yardage," he being employed in the entries, yardage most of the men did not have "yardage" counted in and would receive less money than he. The statement of Mr. Mott showed that he had received during the year an average of $47.75 per month. He said that he had a wife and three children and that he paid a rent of $15 per month which was in the nature of payments upon a home of his own. He said that if it were not for the money that his wife earned he would be unable to support his family on what he could make at the mines. He said that the cost of living in Colorado Springs had increased at least 15 per cent. during the last two years.

His statement of receipts from the mine for 1900, which he said was more than most of the men received, was incorporated into the evidence and was as follows:

	Tons	Price	Yard age	Gross	Deduction	Net
Jan.	120	$60.00	$7.00	$67.53	$5.00	$61.53
Feb.	87	43.50	7.00	50.50	6.85	44.65

Total wages (net) $553.20
Average wages (net) $47.75

After examining a few more witnesses with regard to the relative condition prevailing in the mines here and those in the northern and southern fields, and after calling upon the men to give any further testimony that they might be willing to volunteer, on any phase of the difficulty the committee adjourned to meet today in Denver at 10 o'clock.

Mr. Hanson is agent the Railway and Mine Gazette, the most complete thing of its kind in this western country, as it comprises guide book, time tables and mining information.

Said Mr. Hanson: "In my travels I find that Colorado Springs is on the eve of a boom. I believe that because I hear so much talk of the place. Next spring will see a movement this way. Eastern men are getting ready to take up stock investments.

"I say that I think it is coming to Colorado Springs, for this city seems to have a little the best of it. Denver is doing first rate for rents are going up and there are many other indications of prosperity. I do not hear the business men complain in Colorado Springs, however, of lack of business and they always seem prosperous to me. I have not been here for some time before and I tell you that the place looks prosperous."

APPOLONIAN SOCIETY WON LAST NIGHT

The second inter-society debate between the Pearsons Literary society and the Apollonian club was held in Perkins Fine Arts hall last night. The auditorium was fairly well filled and the speakers showed by their orations that they have put a good deal of careful study and thought on the subject. The question was, "Resolved, That the Gothenburg System of Controlling the Liquor Traffic Modified, Should be Adopted in the United States. The Monopolies Shall Include all Malt Liquors."

Pearsons had the affirmative and Apollonian the negative, and the latter was declared the winner. The speakers on the affirmative were B. M. Randall, W. D. Van Nostran and J. L. Cross and the negative side of the question was upheld by S. S. Packard, E. J. Lake and C. W. Welsser. Each speaker was allowed fifteen minutes and the affirmative had five minutes for rebuttal.

The first number on the programme was a selection by the girls glee club entitled "Love's Dream After the Ball." The girls did nobly and were greeted with rounds of applause from the audience. Then came the debate, and after that, while Hon. H. C. Hall, Dr. W. H. W. Boyle and Prof. E. G. Lancaster, the judges, retired to make their decision, the glee club rendered another selection. The judges were not out long and when they returned to the auditorium Dr. Boyle stepped to the front of the room and explained how they had arrived at their decision. He said they had graded each speaker and that the debate had been very even. However, the negative had a little the best of it and so Apollonian was declared the winner.

COUNTRY CLUB BALL

The Cheyenne Mountain Country club annual ball was held last evening at the clubhouse. It was the prettiest social function that the club has ever held, and will long be remembered with the greatest pleasure by all who were there.

There were in all about 150 guests present at the ball. A number from Denver were to be seen in the company. The beautiful clubhouse never looked prettier than it did last night. The decorations were largely in Christmas greens, the rich effect produced in this manner being heightened and made more beautiful by a profusion of red and white bunting gracefully festooned about the different rooms. Rugs enclosed the big porches of the clubhouse and small stoves warmed them, thus adding materially to the room for the ball and the attractiveness of the scene.

It was about 10:00 when the guests began arriving, but after that hour they came rapidly, and half an hour later most of them were at the club. The ladies receiving were Mrs. A. M. Baker, Mrs. J. A. Connell and Mrs. D. G. C. MacNeill.

A buffet luncheon, served in the smoking room, was a pleasing feature of the event. The music for dancing and for the entertainment was furnished by Horst's orchestra of Denver.

Colds and Rheumatism

The relation between tonsilitis or sore throat and rheumatism has long been known.

There is a relation between rheumatism and pneumonia. The persons that are liable to pneumonia are equally liable to rheumatism. This relationship is not limited to pneumonia and sore throat for it applies also to some cases of bronchitis, pleurisy and other inflammatory conditions.

Many of the febrile storms consisting of aching, chills, fever, a reaction with perspiration and subsequent "tired feeling," and usually called a "cold," have back of them the same etiologic factor as rheumatism. These rheumatic cold cases are they may be called do better under Hot Air and Electric treatment than any other.

EXPEDITION TO SUMATRA.

University of California to Fit Out a Party for Observations.

The University of California will follow up its eclipse expeditions to India and Georgia by sending one to the Indian ocean to observe the notable eclipse of this year. Through the generosity of William H. Crocker of San Francisco, who provided for the successful Georgia expedition, the university will fit out this spring an important astronomical expedition to Sumatra to study the great total eclipse of the sun, which is to take place May 17. It was announced yesterday at the university that the funds would be furnished to defray the entire expenses of a party from Lick observatory to go to the Indian ocean to observe the eclipse. The university has accepted the offer and under Director W. W. Campbell of the Lick observatory, has already commenced to plan for the undertaking, which, if successful, will add new renown to the great institution on Mount Hamilton.

This eclipse is expected to prove one of the most important of recent years. It is, to be total, in the Indian ocean, the line of totality passing through the islands of Mauritius, Sumatra, Borneo, and New Guinea. It will be best observed, according to the calculations of Lick astronomers, from the west coast of Sumatra, at a point about twenty miles from the town of Padang. Thither the expedition will be sent. The party will consist of one astronomer and one assistant from Mount Hamilton. It will leave San Francisco on February 12 and return at some time in July. The men are not yet picked.

Unusual opportunities are to prevail for the observation of this eclipse. Many photographs will be taken and more extended study of the features of the eclipse can be made than is commonly afforded. The Lick expedition will take with it a large telescope and a large amount of photographic and other apparatus. The astronomers at Lick will all be mapped out in advance by Professor Campbell, whose work in charge of the two eclipse expeditions, in Georgia and India, has been quite a splendid experience. The details are a matter of extreme theoretic and practicality, as the whole work of the undertaking depends on that accomplished in the few moments when the sun is obscured. On arriving in Sumatra the observers will scan with the most possible care a spot within the belt of twenty miles near the Padang, best suited for the purpose of erecting their instruments. The whole preliminary time up to the day of the eclipse is considered short in which to prepare for the final observation.

The United States Naval Observatory at Washington will also send an expedition to Sumatra. The sum of $10,000 has been appropriated to defray the expenses of the trip. Harvard university, which usually sends men to observe notable eclipses, will not fit out an expedition this year.—San Francisco Chronicle.

ORNAMENTS STATION GROUNDS.

Burlington Railroad Issues Orders to Beautify Grounds and Buildings.

Officers of several of the big railroad systems are considering plans to induce agents and others concerned to make stronger efforts to beautify station grounds and buildings. During the past year or two particular attention has been given to making the stations more attractive. The Burlington has accomplished a great deal in this direction. Last year it issued orders to all employes that the grounds and buildings adjacent to the company's right-of-way must present a neat and attractive appearance. The company's gardener gave his especial attention to beautifying the suburban stations for forty miles out of Chicago. Before last summer, closed switch shanties, tool houses, yard offices and round houses had been prettily covered with running vines and the grounds about each building converted into fine lawns over which shrubbery had been planted. During the coming spring and summer this work will be greatly extended, and in time the Burlington expects to have [illegible] the west.

Some of the overheard soliloquies on the doorsteps of New York mansions are very amusing, according to examples quoted by the New York Tribune. "Is your missus in?" asked a carriage footman of an indoor footman, with familiar jocularity, while his mistress sat in unsuspecting state in her victoria. "No, she ain't," answered the other with a grin. "Well, I'm glad and you're glad and missus in the carriage is glad," exclaimed the facetious footman. "Is Miss B. at home?" inquired [illegible] "No, she ain't," [illegible] queried the servant before opening the door. "No, my name is Mr. Smith," said the caller. "Then she isn't at home," was the unshaken answer. An English lord who was taken not for his dignity could not call on a [illegible] who had recently been at dinner on a former visit to America. "Ask Mrs. S. if she will see me," he said to an old family servant who came to the door evidently on a state occasion. [illegible] the old servant with a [illegible] manner, he [illegible] "Mrs. S. is at home, but I ask to see Mr. S." [illegible] "I asked for Mrs. S."

OPERA HOUSE TONIGHT.

Mr. Walker Whiteside in "The Heart and Sword" will be the attraction at the opera house this evening. "Heart and Sword" is a sprightly romance. Even in these days of the romantic drama, and the author has evolved a lively story and a fresh and delicious handling of old and familiar themes. Nothing [illegible] good as much for its setting. Perhaps than the native of the piece itself, the [illegible] and forceful personality of the pictured president [illegible] and her waiting sweetheart to the [illegible] to [illegible] herself to [illegible] to [illegible] and romantically under the guise of a third person.

In this case the young man is Victor, Duke of Heimhault, a petty prince of a little kingdom involved in petty difficulties. The girl is Sylvia, daughter of the [illegible] and [illegible] to the purpose of [illegible] to allow our king long [illegible] to affect [illegible] the [illegible] of avoiding a war with [illegible] which would ruin one or both countries and probably the overthrow of both [illegible] Victor, born to the purple and used to the adulation of his [illegible] has [illegible] the wisdom of those years and is all unconscious which his manners usurp his power and [illegible] the [illegible] of the royal [illegible] and the oppression of his subjects. His army, half [illegible] half clothed and [illegible] poverty, is making a half-hearted [illegible] against an [illegible] [illegible] which has [illegible] and covetous eyes on the little principality.

The marriage is arranged by the ministers of the two states of Heimhault and Stolmhausen, and the [illegible] is sealed through a trick. Victor is not so easily managed. He battles himself in love with his cousin, Irene, who is herself in love with the prince's secretary, Count Oscar. [illegible] prince cannot be refused. Heimhault seemed doomed; but, at last, through the [illegible] of Ernestine and the [illegible] news that the Erwaldians have won an almost decisive battle and that Friedrich Stalbach, a trusted official of the prince, has turned traitor and has fled towards Erwald with the plans of the fortifications, the prince is aroused to action. At the demand of his subjects he signs a contract to wed the princess. Mortified at his defeat and recognizing the impoverished condition of the state, he refuses all escort and starts alone on foot to Stolmhausen to present himself to Sylvia, a beggar prince who craves her charity.

SEABROOKE IN "THE ROUNDERS"

Comedian Thomas Q. Seabrooke's big Casino production of "The Rounders" is to be seen here for one night only Monday evening. [illegible] anybody is familiar with the success of this gaiety of Harry B. Smith and Ludwig Englander. It ran for 202 nights at the New York home of its conception and was then generally proclaimed by the press and public the [illegible] "Erminie." Harry B. Smith has written a ton of clever libretos, but none compares with this. This story is a sprightly conceit, quaint in spots and sometimes risque, but the thin ice is never broken. Briefly, the story concerns an intrigue of a gay French marquis with a [illegible] named Thea. The marquis' wife is a gentle, demure little Quaker girl. It is her misery as much as anything else that drives the marquis to the actress for relief, but she stumbles upon his amour before any serious harm can occur, and by outmaneuvering the actress to whom he is paying court, succeeds in turning the tables upon him effectually. This is the framework. The real comics of this vaudeville opera issue from the presence in the story of a droll skipper lord of the coast of Turkey, adopted by the sultan and subsequently made a pasha. Hobnobbing with marquis and European potentates he encounters the king of Bulgaria. The king describes the raiment of Paris to Mac in such highly colored shades that the Celtic Turk hies immediately to Paris to find Thea, whom the king of Bulgaria had met there. Scenic songs, dances, chorus ensembles and other pictorial elements of a Casino extravaganza are included in the presentation.

"THE HOTTEST COON IN DIXIE."

"A rattling good" is the big management gives to that irresistible waves of merriment, "The Hottest Coon in Dixie." The piece fairly scintillates with the most sparkling of dances, with catchy songs and with the most laughably ludicrous of comedy scenes and situations. [illegible] laughter from start to finish. It is a [illegible] with [illegible] than sweets for a long [illegible] singers who entrance you by their [illegible] with comedians whose fun is [illegible] original and [illegible] delightful. Its engagement here at the Opera house next Tuesday evening is one of the [illegible] events of the season.

STATE MINING NEWS.

LEADVILLE.

The Ohio Gold Mines and Leasing Company operating the Ohio [illegible] on the southwest slope of [illegible] opened up a strike at [illegible] the 200 foot level that [illegible] subject to the [illegible] and [illegible] but is being followed up and the operators have great confidence in its opening up a good [illegible]. The location of this property is adjacent to the Little Chief [illegible] and [illegible] six months since and those who [illegible] that property say the ore [illegible] is almost [illegible] the Ohio claim.

A communication from the head of the Mexico Stock association was presented to the board of trade last night and referred to the mining committee. From the remarks [illegible] it is highly probable that some united action will be taken to prevent the flotation of "wild cat" schemes through the [illegible] operations. If an honest attempt is made by the stock association and board of trade to ferret out the suspicious schemes. It will give standing to those that are engaged in the legitimate business of mining.

Leadville has the groundwork for the greatest mining camp in the world and [illegible] reason why Leadville mining stocks should be the most popular investments on the market. In the district Leadville district there are close by eighty square miles of mineralized territory, in any portion of which development may prove up big mines, while the adjacent camps, often included in the Leadville district, embrace hundreds of square miles of positively good territory. To develop these immense tracts requires money in large amounts and, to secure this, outside capital must be interested, and protected from the misrepresentations of unscrupulous promoters. By all means let immediate action be taken by the board of trade and [illegible] Citizen.—(Leadville Miner.

The announcement which was made in the Herald-Democrat that a steam dredge would be placed in position in the lower end of California gulch has created much interest in local mining circles. A steam dredge is a decidedly massive structure, floating on a small lake [illegible] with [illegible] buckets &c. To place the dredge in position here a mile or more above Leadville, once in position it can be operated at a cost of [illegible] per cubic yard. Profits in elevator dredging depend largely upon the richness of the ground and [illegible] handling. A dredge handling 300 cubic yards of gravel daily [illegible] at an expense of $60 a day. Even 30 cent ground would be good profit during the season but there is every evidence that the lower California gulch grounds are much richer. The incorporators of the Leadville company intend to run a series of drill holes fifty feet apart, from Rock [illegible] to Malta, a case [illegible] mile and half long. This work has already commenced. [illegible] sufficient accurate tests to see much of the value of the ground so that the direction of the gold channel can be accurately traced. The dredge will be first placed in position at the extreme west end of the gulch erecting a dam across to secure sufficient water to float it, four feet being sufficient. As the dredging progresses the waste is thrown out, advancing the dam easterly. It will take several years, however, to wash the country that the company has [illegible].—(Herald-Democrat.

RED CLIFF DISTRICT.

John Doddridge who made a success of several Leadville enterprises, is now in Red Cliff and according to the Blade, is preparing to do some important development work on Battle mountain. The incline on which he is working is now in the mountain 1500 feet. New machinery is to be installed and the incline is to be pushed ahead and through the low grade sulphides to far, as the Times says, "the source of Battle mountain's wealth." There are many pockets of rich ore which extend into the Cambrian quartzite, but they have never been followed, below the horizon [illegible] to drive the incline ahead and open up the deep seated sources of the vein. Mr. Doddridge made a success of every enterprise he handled in the Leadville district and he will probably give the Red Cliff dwellers some points on Cloud City enterprise.—(Herald-Democrat.

MINING NOTES FROM UTAH

The cleanup of the Eureka mill mill at Eureka-Tintic mining district for the last month has just been forwarded to the eastern refinery in the shape of thirty-seven bars of bullion weighing two tons. Another cleanup will shortly be made which will be the last made by the old company. The mill has been shut down and the closing order has also been sent to the mine superintendent. Manager Moylan Fox has been in the east since Christmas and it is rumored that the ultimate purchase of the property by the Centennial-Eureka is contemplated.

Vice President Chas. G. Thompson of the Chicago Oil and Mining exchange, is visiting the mining camps of Utah.

Mr. James C. Wigglinton, formerly auditor for the Woods Investment company of Cripple Creek, has come to Utah to accept a position with the Bingham smelter.

Joe Delbidis returned from Bingham this week and reports that his part of changing the aerial tram terminal at the mine has been completed.

Manager Poland said the heavy cables on which the bucket carriers ran, had been changed from one side to the other of the supporting piers between the mine and the mill, the change being necessitated by the new uses to which the tram will hereafter be applied. Formerly nothing but ore was hauled, but from now on coal will be sent up on one side as ore comes down on the other and in order to have the heaviest carry cable on the ore bin side of the big drum at the new station which is two and one-half miles from the mine, the cables had to be placed in a reversed position. Things are now running smoothly and the smelter at Bingham Junction is treating its full capacity of 500 tons per diem.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Martha Washington Mining Co. of Silver City, Utah, was held on Tuesday, [illegible] 22, 1901, and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Judge Geo. W. Bartch—H. E. Clauson, E. A. Snow, L. E. Riter and Wm. Hatfield. The mine has been laying idle for more than a year now and the new directorate declares its intention of starting up work on this promising property which adjoins the Sunbeam Consolidated in which Thos. Kearns of Silver King fame is one of the heaviest stockholders.

ALAMO MINE.

The Alamo mine at Bingham is reported to be in a body of copper-gold and silver sulphides with indications of a good ore body being encountered. The ores resemble very much those taken from the lower mines of the camp. Before long the Alamo ought to become a profitable producer and be sought after by those desiring good property.

Secretary Obermdorfer of the Little Chief Mining Co. of Tintic, stated that reports from the mine were to the effect that the recent strike consisted of three feet of ore carrying chlorides of silver and carbonates of lead. The samples received are fine and assays reveal 20 per cent lead and 14.7 ounces silver. The stock has strengthened and has advanced three cents.

At a meeting of the directors of the Uncowa Mining company of Tintic it was decided to continue work on the 300-foot level, where mineral is now being encountered that shows assays of 10 ounces silver, some gold and 10 per cent iron.

The Bullionaire of the Mystic Shrine of Bingham, has just consummated a deal by which it secures a lease and bond on the Amazon No. 2 and Amazon No. 3 claims underlying the Julia Dean and Red Wing, and already the driving of the main Amazon tunnel, which has penetrated the zone for 900 feet, is being prosecuted in the two shifts. The course of the tunnel has always been upon the strike of the vein and yesterday reports from the camp indicated the presence of from three to five feet of sulphides in its breast. In the meantime surveys are being made by Vivian P. Strange, preparatory to an application for patents. The outlook for the new territory recently acquired is bright and the [illegible] Persons who lead a life of exposure are subject to rheumatism, neuralgia and lumbago, will find a valuable remedy in BALLARD'S SNOW LINIMENT; it will banish pains and subdue inflammation. MAY LIVE ON THE MOON.

Astronomer Says Orb is Passing Through a Glacial Epoch.

As an astronomical starter for the new century, Dr. L. J. Van Marter of Toledo, Ohio, advances some new theories as to an ice-bound, snow-bound moon, having traces of vegetation in the depressions and probably [illegible] H. E. M. that the planet simply is in its glacial epoch at this time and that the depressed surfaces which at some day may be ocean bottoms, are the regions where animal and vegetable life first appears.

"Reflectoscopy" is the coined word which Dr. Van Marter has made use of in making his method of observation. This reflectoscopy he defines as the science of determining what a substance is by analysis of the light reflected from it. This, he says, is entirely different from the spectrum analysis, as that shows only what is in the flame. In reflectoscopy he determines by an analysis of the light reflex the substance from which that light emanates. Summing up his theories and the proofs that he feels to have established, they are, in brief:

That the moon is covered with snow and ice.

That the so-called extinct volcanoes on the moon are ice mounds and caps.

That, considering the present state of the planet, there are reasons for believing that it is inhabited.

Incidentally he explains how an atmosphere free from moisture cannot [illegible], and also why no clouds, rain nor snows obscure the face of the moon.

"The absolute clearness of the moon's atmosphere," he says, "its lack of clouds, rain and snow, is because watery vapor is chilled and condenses before it can get away from the valleys; this also explains the formation of the ice mounds and ice caps. In the low and shielded valleys it is warmer than on the surrounding highlands. Vapor rises, but because of the intense cold cannot rise and float away far, but is soon condensed. This process repeated over and over resulted in the crater-like formations. The moon being almost entirely covered with snow and ice, the sun cannot vaporize sufficient water for the formation of clouds and this explains their absence in the moon's atmosphere."

As to the snow reflex, Dr. Van Marter says he determines it just as an oculist diagnoses atrophy of the optic nerve from its light reflex. He says:

"The light reflex from the moon's mountains, poles and highlands is pure white, but gloomy and lusterless. From the moon's equatorial lowlands there is the same quality of light, only somewhat darkened, and this is evidence of struggling vegetation. Lava, igneous rock or meteoric metal does not give a pure white reflex; volcanoes or barren mountains do not; snow-clad mountains do. Sailors in the tropics sleeping on deck in the moonlight get a disease of the eyes similar to snow blindness. [illegible] evidence and its logical analysis harmonize with my deductions."

He concludes that the uniformity pure whiteness of the highlands also points to snow, just as the whiteness of the rims of the darkened areas point to impinging glaciers.

Dr. Van Marter insists that the volcano idea is an absurdity for several reasons. It assumes the absence of water, in the first place, and without this element the doctors says that rock would not have crystalized, even under the effect of the [illegible] on the moon's surface could be rock. That it is not rock he claims to prove for the reason that no volcanic rock could reflect a white light.

Again he says that the large size of the so-called volcanoes, with diameters of twenty to fifty miles, points to an instant cooling, and that without the agency of water the says would be [illegible] cooling would have superimposed conical peaks, leaving the crater cups at the apex instead of low down, in the present giant basins.—(Chicago Tribune.

THE COLORADO SPRINGS MINING STOCK EXCHANGE

Colorado Springs, Jan. 25.—The market today on 'change was somewhat out of tune with the trading which was done yesterday, and stocks suffered in sympathy in prices in some instances, although there were some good inquiries. The general tone of the market is not very unsatisfactory, however, many stocks continue to manifest very creditable strength, and there is only a small amount of selling. If there had been many selling orders on the floor this morning, the market might have suffered to some extent, as there seemed to be a limited demand, but as it was, the condition is adequately described as rather dull, and the dull days are inevitable in the best of times.

The market was still lighter in the afternoon with little interest manifested in any of the departments. Missouri was very active and strong, opening as high as 11 but closing two points lower. There were some very bullish rumors on 'change about the property of this company and it may not be unlikely that a shipment of ore will soon be made. Bob Lee in the unlisted department, was a good trade at 5¾, and Shannon was in evidence again, although not so strong as it was on the first call of the day, closing at 4¼ regular, and at 4, buyer 30. Elkton was stronger at $1 86. Jack Pot sold at 58 and Isabella sold lightly at 68. Pointer closed a little stronger at 18¾, buyer '30. Zoe closed at 23, buyer 30. St. Thomas sold at 9.

The sales for the day amounted to 1,068,411 shares of which the cash value was $89,100.

WIDE RANGE OF PRICES

New York Stocks Opened Depressed With Weakness Acute.

MARKET HARDENED PROMPTLY

But There Were Frequent Reactions During the Day Decided Decline in Activity.

New York Jan 25—Prices traversed a considerable range today from the low level to the top level covering one point for a large number of stocks and ranging from 2 to about 3½ for some of the most prominent. The number of stocks which at any time got a point away from last night's level in either direction was small however. The early decline in prices was assisted by London's disposition to sell American stocks which had established a decline ranging up nearly a point in some of the American stocks before the opening. The New York market opened depressed in sympathy and weakness was rather acute in some cases notably in St Paul and Brooklyn Transit. These stocks later in the day led the advance so their extreme range was wide St Paul rising 3½ from the lowest and closing at the top while Brooklyn Transit advanced an extreme 2½. This morning's decline coming on top of that yesterday invited some buying to support prices and the market hardened pretty promptly after the opening dip. The movement was exceedingly disappointing and there were frequent reactions during the day. Whenever speculative support was withdrawn, in fact prices were inclined to slip back. The steel stocks were inclined to strength all day, showed decided improvement. The most notable feature of the day's market was the decided decline in activity from the recent high level and the necessity for persistent manipulation to secure a movement of prices. This is the natural result of the large elimination of speculative accounts from the market caused by last week's considerable reaction and this week's rebound which resulted in a large reduction, first of the long account and second of the short account. The market has drifted during the week more and more into professional hands.

The preliminary figures of the week's movement of cash insure another gain to be shown in tomorrow's bank statement which will probably reach over $4 000 000 on account of the direct export movement of gold from the interior and in spite of the gold exports of $4 000 000 which almost exactly wiped out the gain by the banks on sub-treasury operations.

The large demand for St L and Southwestern seconds was the inception of an active buying movement of bonds of all the Gould southwesterns at notable advances in price. The market [illegible] Total sales par value $5 529 000.

U S 2s coupon advanced ⅛ in bid price.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

Chicago Jan 25—May opened ⅛@⅛c higher at 75½c to 75⅝c and sold early at 75c on a rather quiet market. High latitudes and Argentine shipments moderate, northwest receipts [illegible]

[illegible] were the factors. This buying stood in marked contrast to the early sales and the buying pressure caused a rally to 76⅛c shortly after [illegible] that it [illegible] time to sell when the market touched 76c some houses asserted themselves and forced May back to 75½c. These offerings were so quickly taken and more [illegible] the session a sharp advance from this price to 77c took place and the close was strong May 1⅝@1¾c higher at 76⅞@77c.

Corn was only moderately active but closed a little higher.

Oats were fairly active and strong in sympathy with wheat.

Provisions were moderately active closing higher.

The London Market.

New York Jan 25—The cable to the Associated Press from London financial telegram: The stock market here today was [illegible] and heavy in sympathy with many forced sales of West Australian shares. An afternoon [illegible] of the recent Whitaker Wright shares. An [illegible] the early trading they were dull and lower with a dragging tendency. Later they hardened on good buying of Denver & Rio Grande issues. No reason was given for the sudden interest in these shares. Money was a little stiffer. California were from 3 to 3½. This was a result of the bank return showing a reduction in the market holdings amounting to $4 000 000. Silver was held up by purchases for the mints.

Denver Produce

Denver Jan 25—This was decidedly the dullest day of the week on the produce market. Poultry was in better demand and quite an active trade was expected. The market rules steady. Eggs are unchanged from yesterday. Receipts have [illegible] disappointment being much light. Other [illegible] Market [illegible] steady at quotations. Potatoes are [illegible] lower. R. G. DUN & CO.'S REVIEW

Large Business in Staple and Manufactured Goods at Unchanged Prices Since November 1

New York Jan 25—The R G Dun & Co weekly review of trade tomorrow will say:

Hardly has there been more business in stock and in manufactures than is at practically unchanged prices than in the period since November 1. This will [illegible] enormous dealings at figures which have become familiar. The heavy trade is going from the larger distribution of dry goods at a firmly range of quotations and the rush to secure prompt delivery of boots and shoes all indicate that business may have set on those well-known readjustments of prices which have proved often serving in recent years. Jobbing trade in the [illegible] is good and collections only [illegible] excellent. Bank clearings at New York gain 21 over 1900 and 1[illegible] per cent over 1899 for the week while at leading cities outside New York there is a gain of [illegible] per cent over 1900 and 24 per cent over 1899. Railroad earnings thus far reported for January show a gain of 11.4 per cent over last year and 24.6 per cent over 1899.

After a week of quiet and long partly due to uncertainty regarding [illegible] and steel industry has taken another long stride forward. The feature was [illegible] 21 in Pittsburg. This sudden activity in the raw material removed fear that stocks might be accumulating at furnaces and gave some idea of the heavy contracts for finished products taken by the mills. In some directions there is less foreign inquiry although an unusually heavy shipments of billets went to Glasgow and exports of rails have not ceased. Freight rates to the seaboard are still considered excessive by manufacturers, and there is more inclination to push domestic business on this account. Arbitration is expected to prevent suspension of work at the furnaces where a strike was threatened on Feb 1. Pooling of [illegible] region is being discussed but the quality has been inferior and sales only effected at concessions.

Staple products have moved within narrow limits, little attention being given to widely varying estimates from Argentine or reports of damage in the northwest through insufficient snow. Despite the advance in prices over [illegible] wheat including flour from Atlantic ports for the week were 2 765 818 bushels against 1 544 149 last year.

Failures for the week were 306 in the United States against 281 last year and 46 in Canada against 38 last year.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW

Trade as a Whole is Reported of a Satisfactory Volume for the Time of Year

New York Jan 25—Bradstreet's to-morrow will say:

Despite some irregularities in reports from different sections and industries trade as a whole is of a satisfactory volume for this time of year. Relatively the best reports come from the Pacific coast, the south and southwest where spring demand is opening well. In [illegible] notably the east has been a [illegible] activity in retail trade but taken as a whole the trade situation has many points of strength. Special activity has been noted in some branches of the iron trade and sentiment has been on the whole helped by a better view of the possibilities contained in the recent war talk.

[illegible] of business abroad naturally points to some diminution in our export trade in the cruder forms of iron and steel, coffee and lumber. But finished products of these and other [illegible] supplies the outlook is declared to be still satisfactory. Speculation is [illegible] in stocks and [illegible] stock exchange houses [illegible] business than [illegible] important changes in [illegible] slightly higher [illegible]

[illegible] the general [illegible] some shading in the high grades of [illegible] [illegible] sales for the week [illegible] A feature [illegible] was the shipment of [illegible] billets to Glasgow [illegible] the biggest shipment of this material [illegible] south. Heavy quantities of rails [illegible] be [illegible] the country [illegible] of the [illegible] Exportations will be found in the official stocks of iron on December 31, 1900 aggregating 447 [illegible] tons or about seven times the quantity [illegible] year before.

Among the [illegible] metals copper is weak and practically lower in sympathy with the [illegible] in prices abroad but this is high [illegible] of excited markets and higher prices in London. A large export shipment of zinc [illegible] from [illegible] tons.

Wheat including flour shipments for the week aggregate 4 386 678 bushels against 3 236 014 bushels last week and [illegible]

From July 1 to date this season wheat exports are 11 01[illegible] bushels against 11 394 095 bushels last season and 14[illegible] bushels in 1898-99.

There is apparently less public speculative interest in the grain markets and tired long liquidation on the late decline has helped to partially offset the later developments of smaller receipts from the northwest decreases in the visible supply and the continued [illegible] Wheat nowadays is slightly higher. Talk of a coming big deal in May wheat in Chicago has [illegible] again.

Failures in the United States [illegible] against [illegible] last week and [illegible] in this week a year ago.

Canadian failures for the week number 34, a decrease of 16 from last week and compared with 30 in 1900.

FINANCIAL REVIEW

Much Irregularity Shown in the Course of the New York Stock Market

New York Jan 25—Bradstreet's financial review tomorrow will say:

Much irregularity has been seen in the course of the market this week and speculation was uncertain and variable in its tendencies. On last Saturday and Monday the chief influence was the expected death of Queen Victoria, which in the end heavy selling in the London market and caused foreign holders to part with considerable amounts of American securities. This supplementing the unsettled feeling of last week about industrials and the liquidation in the railroad share list led to further concessions in prices and to a decided reduction in the volume of business [illegible] market. On Tuesday however there was a decided rally in prices due partly to the feeling that the death of the queen had been fully perhaps excessively discounted at London. The covering of shorts was on an extensive scale though the steel stocks were again subjected to a certain amount of pressure. On the ensuing day strength continued in the early transactions followed however by renewed selling and finally by a rally which lasted until the end of the first hour's trading. Then [illegible] and the market hung heavily until the afternoon when bullish interests became more active and succeeded in forcing down prices throughout the active list. The opening on Friday was weak in some [illegible] in London but subject was on a more [illegible] short covering in various direction also set in resulting [illegible] demand at the close.
